ROBYN CROOK LUKE JAMES

Robyn and Luke became Mr and Mrs at their winter wedding at The Mandolay Hotel, Guildford, Surrey

PHOTOGRAPHY: Gordon Terry

WE LOOKED at three venues before we decided but we knew once we set foot in the Mandolay and met the lovely sales director, Tami Vickery, that this was the place we were going to become husband and wife. We decided to have 80 guests to the day and then a further 80 in the evening and hoped to keep the budget no higher than £15,000 but also knew we couldn't put a price on our perfect day.

The wedding process seemed to go without a hitch and we had all the main things booked before December. We decided on a royal blue colour scheme with a winter, festive theme. I chose my wedding dress, by Romantica, from Belles Bridal shop in Woking, Surrey.

On the morning of the wedding, I woke up feeling nervous but excited. I had a lovely bath to try to relax me and then went down for breakfast with my parents and my bridal party.

Walking down the aisle was a surreal moment and now feels like a blur. It was exciting but I was also nervous that I was going to fall headfirst down the aisle.

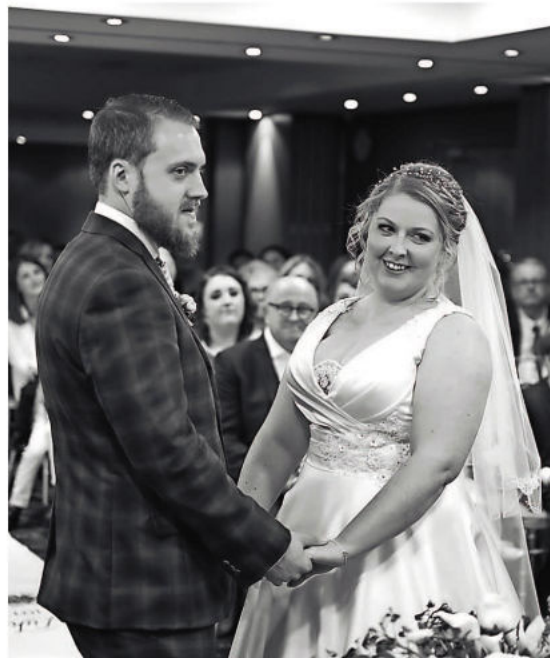

The reception was everything I imagined and more. The space in the Mandolay is so big I was worried it would feel empty but I managed to fill it up. We had lovely décor, with fairylight draping and a LED dancefloor to make the room feel all sparkly. We also had a candy cart and photobooth. ♥

SURPRISE SURPRISE

♥ Early on in the planning, I decided I wanted to arrange a surprise for Luke, so my mum, Anna Homer, and I found and booked the Silver Service Singing Waiters to perform during our wedding meal. It was a huge surprise for Luke and the guests at the wedding. We would highly recommend them as they brought a great atmosphere to the day and all our guests enjoyed singing and dancing along.
